Technologies:

100 kW solar thermal system

Funding Source:

American Recovery and Reinvestment Act –
State Energy Program

Incentives:

$16,080

Total Project Costs:

$89,000

Energy Impacts:

- Reducing natural gas usage by 1035 MMBTUs annually
- Offsetting up to 75 percent of water heating needs

Economic Impacts:

- $4,400 cost savings per year
- Retained 5 jobs

Environmental Impacts:

- Reduce CO<sub>2</sub> emissions by more than 110,000 pounds annually, which is equivalent to taking 10 cars off the road.

Parkway Local Board of Education

Background:

Parkway Local School District serves Mercer County and was awarded an excellent rating on the 2009-2010 report card from the Ohio Department of Education. The single, 245,000-square-foot building was built five years ago under a partnership with the Ohio School Facilities Commission and accommodates about 1,100 K-12 students.

Challenge:

About the time when the Parkway Local Schools in Rockford, Ohio, were looking for ways to save energy in its K-12 school building, the federal government was providing grants for such projects through the economic stimulus package.

Solution:

The District installed a 100 kW solar thermal system at the Parkway High School that will act as an educational tool as well as offset 75 percent of the natural gas used by the facility. The school sent two high-school science teachers and two middle-school science teachers for training and ordered curriculum material so students can learn more about how solar thermal works and the advantages of it.

"Besides the energy we're saving for the planet and the money we're saving for the district, our students are excited that we're doing something 'green' and that they can see a system here that is helping the environment,"

- Gregory Puthoff, Superintendent of Parkway Local Schools
